CIPS Nova Scotia Feb. 25 Event: 'Communications Clients & Clarity'

CIPS

How do you ask the $60 million dollar question? Have you ever had to work on a project in an ambiguous situation? Do you want to save time and resources? Would you like to prevent some unnecessary stress for all concerned? Can we ask questions without sounding or feeling weak? Highly successful consultants and analysts need to communicate well and ask the right questions. Having fun is important in any team and that is what we'll do here.

CIPS Saskatoon Feb. 26 Luncheon: "The Times They Are a-Changin'"

CIPS

Projects and System Implementations are only successful if they are embraced and used to improve current business processes. Technology is only valuable if it drives benefits to the organization and in order for that to happen, people have to be READY, WILLING, and ABLE to adopt the change.

Share why computing is important for Canada on CanCompEd Day

IT World Canada

To celebrate Canadian Computing Education (CanCompEd) Day, we have undertaken a crowd-sourced video project. Inspired by code.org's videos, especially their 'Hour of Code' kickoff video that featured Canadian singer Carly Rae Jepsen, we're inviting Canadians (wherever they may be) to submit short video segments (not more than about 30 seconds) talking about the importance of computing and computer science education in Canada.

Expert: Canada should follow U.S. cybersecurity framework

IT World Canada

Canadian enterprises and governments should adopt a just-released American government framework for tightening IT security of critical infrastructure, says a security consultant. "I don't think we should re-invent the wheel," Kevvie Fowler, a partner in the forensic advisory services at KMPG Canada, said of the guidelines released recently by the federal National Information Technology Laboratory (NIST).
