CIPS

What value has your involvement with CIPS provided?

The involvement with CIPS has given me greater exposure to the understanding of real challenges in the IT industry especially in modern times, and a fabulous network of people who are great personalities beyond their unparalleled technical talents.

CISOs increasingly turning to biometrics to improve security

IT World Canada

With many people using insecure passwords and falling victim to phishing attacks, a number of vendors and organizations are turning to biometrics as a solution to add two-factor identification for extra security. The increasing number of people losing smart phones and tablets which could have sensitive corporate data is one of the drivers for fingerprint scanners on mobile devices.
