April CIPS Volunteer of the Month: Darren MacDonald

CIPS

When I joined CIPS, I considered it a wonderful networking opportunity (which it is!), but once I joined, I soon realized that CIPS is an important association that has helped shape the IT profession in Canada.

CIPS provides a great opportunity to give back to the IT community.

CIO's top 6 considerations for Windows 10 plus latest preview 10061

IT World Canada

For the executive planning IT strategy for enterprises, there are key consideration areas in Windows 10 as evidenced by examining the preview (available through the Insiders program) and coming updates prior to release this year summer (perhaps as early as July as noted by the AMD CEO). Priorities such as consistency, increased productivity, mobile and cloud first, security focus, consumer to enterprise usage alignment, the new web and embracing big data analytics come to mind.

Time to measure your security maturity

IT World Canada

Most CISOs think they have a handle on how secure their organization is, pointing with pride to the latest (fill in the blank) system that's just been installed. But another way to measure what's going on is to look at the organization's security maturity — or, as author Brian Krebs put it, does it make cybersecurity a part of the culture or just pay lip service to it?
