Free security tools recommended by experts

CIPS

Network security pros are known for their colourful language, usually because when something hits the fan they get called first. But their favourite four letter word might be "free" — as in free tools that are available to solve problems.

What the emergence of the 'IT engaged' exec means for CIO work styles

IT World Canada

It could be the CMO, the head of sales or even the CEO, but the stakeholders IDC Canada is describing as "IT engaged" may not only influence how CIOs are perceived among the rest of the organization, but how they perceive themselves. Although I wasn't able to attend in person this year, I received a copy of the slide deck from what looked like one of the best presentations at IDC Canada's recent Directions 2015 event, which was produced in partnership with ITAC.

Featured Case Study: VDI Space

CIPS via IT World Canada

Convincing customers to migrate their IT infrastructure to a completely cloud-based solution is a difficult sell, to say the least. The production disruption alone is enough to kill the sale. So how does VDI Space, a successful cloud consulting firm and StorageCraft® partner, do it?
