Just how big is big data?

IT World Canada

Open any current business and technology publication and you will find at least one article on big data. IT World Canada alone has published many on the topic. In their next article, I will give you a sense of just how big this big data phenomenon really is and provide an example of a new type of business that is developing to serve the big data analysis needs of business and industry. READ MORE

How the Skills Framework for the Information Age (SFIA) can be used in immigrant assessment/placement

CIPS

CIPS Alberta will be holding focus group discussions/information sessions for immigrants, employers and immigration services and recruitment agencies in Edmonton and Calgary. We will outline the skill description framework and discuss how it is used in skill level assessment and how that can work for appropriate workforce placement. You will be able to determine the value of using SFIA in your operations.
