Featured Whitepaper: 'The Business Value of Managed Security Services'

CIPS via IT World Canada

For many organizations, outsourcing network security services appears to be a logical choice. You avoid hardware, licensing, and maintenance costs; you benefit from around-the-clock security monitoring and management from dedicated security experts; and you free up your in-house IT staff to pursue activities core to your business mission. READ MORE

Web vulnerabilities need to be stamped out

IT World Canada

Infosec pros at the Toronto SC Congress conference got an earful from Canadian Dave Lewis of Akamai Technologies on the need to ensure their Web sites don't aid and abet distributed denial of service. There came another reminder in an article from CSO Online that there are too many vulnerabilities in Web sites that help attackers which can easily be plugged.

Take action against data breaches now

IT World Canada

There's no escape, and you can be assured that it will occur if it hasn't already! I'm talking about data breach. No single day passes without hearing about a data breach incident in the news. But how do you deal with all the security intrusions? There are two ways I'll cover data breach, both in terms of preventive and corrective actions.
