ICT skills shortage set to worsen as pipeline slows down and workers retire

IT World Canada

Despite the looming threat of recession, Canada still has a skills shortage in the digital economy, according to the Information and Communications Technology Council (ICTC), and we're not training enough people to fill the growing gap. A new ICTC report, Digital Economy Supply: Canada's Post-Secondary Education Stream, confirms the pipeline that produces workers who know how to leverage modern technologies is not keeping up with demand.
