October CIPS Volunteer of the Month: Candace Phelps

CIPS

What value has your involvement with CIPS provided?

An opportunity to work with IT professionals outside of work!

I'm also excited about the opportunity to apply design skills to the CIPS AB newsletters and website.

CIPS AB Calgary Dec. 4 Breakfast Meeting: 'Inspiration in Project Management'

CIPS

Project management is based on a methodological framework and processes that need to be understood and properly applied — indispensable to ensure success. But what about individuals' soft skills and communication, factors by their nature, that obviously cannot be limited to simple methods.

Growth vs. risk: How smart CIOs strike the balance

IT World Canada

In the investment world, there is a single principle that determines your success. The principle doesn't require insider knowledge. It doesn't require knowledge of reading technical charts or annual reports. Investment success ultimately comes down to asset allocation.

CIOs and suppliers: Making the most of the relationship

IT World Canada

Anyone who has been a CIO will tell you that a significant amount of time is spent managing relationships with suppliers. These can be good or not so good at times, but the question really is how to best maximize the value for the benefit of all concerned.

Featured Whitepaper: 'Solution Spotlight: Securing Android for the Enterprise'

CIPS via IT World Canada

This Solution Spotlight provides an overview of how enterprises are dealing with mobility and security (from bring-your-own device to choose-your-own device programs) and explains the pros and cons of each from a business risk and management perspective. It also reveals the strength of the Android market and takes a closer look at the role of Samsung's KNOX mobile platform in helping businesses take greater advantage of enterprise mobility to sharpen their competitive edge.
